SCLA CONVENTION HELD

The 48th session of the South Carolina Library Association convened at the Ocean Forest Hotel, Myrtle Beach, on October 11. Nearly 400 librarians from across the state were in attendance.

Reports of officers and section chairmen were presented at the first general session meeting on Thursday, October 11. Constitutional amendments establishing representation of the Junior Members Round Table on the Executive Committee and annual election of JMRT officers were voted upon and adopted. The Planning Committee reported the organization of an Interlibrary Loan Committee which will conduct a study of interlibrary loan policies in the state. In addition, a report on the status of the Southeastern States Co-operative Library Survey was given. New business included SCLA endorsement of the ACRL statement on faculty status and standards and ACRL minimum standards for academic libraries. Election of officers followed.

At the second general session held Thursday evening, Mr. Roderick G. Swartz, Deputy Director of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science, spoke on the plans and activities of the Commission.

Section meetings were held on Friday, October 12. Speakers at the section meetings included: College and University Libraries Section - Dr. Louis Rubin, Jr., Dept. of English, University of North Carolina, on "Uncle Remus and the Elusive Rabbit: Notes on the Two Joel Chandler Harrises"; Special Libraries Section - State Senator Harris P. Smith, State Advisory Council on Libraries, on "Public Funds for Library Service in South Carolina," and Mrs. Mary Alice Jackson, Chief Librarian, Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, on "What is a Special Library?" and School Libraries Section - Mrs. Catheryne S. Franklin, Associate Professor, Graduate School of Library Science, University of Texas at Austin, on "The Great Blueness and Other Predicaments."

Other speakers appearing on programs Friday included: Dr. W. Edwin Hemphill, editor of the Calhoun Papers, on the "John C. Calhoun Manuscripts," Mr. Pat Conroy, author of The Water is Wide, and Dr. Thomas Naylor, Director of the Center for Southern Studies, Duke University, on "Strategies for Change in the South."

At the final general session on Saturday morning, Miss Estellene P. Walker, in the absence of the Honorable P. Bradley Morrah, Jr., Chairman of the S. C. Bicentennial Commission, discussed plans for the Bicentennial program in South Carolina. Concluding the program was Dr. Porter G. Barron, Executive Secretary, S. C. Committee for the Humanities, speaking on "The S. C. Committee for the Humanities, What is it? What can you do with it?"

STATE LIBRARY'S BUDGET REQUEST PRESENTED

The South Carolina State Library Board appeared before the State Budget and Control Board on October 2 to explain with justification the library's budget request for Fiscal Year 1974-1975. Dr. Carlanna Hendrick, Chairman of the Board, and Estellene P. Walker, State Librarian, presented a request for $1,600,000 representing a slight increase over the current year's appropriation.

NEWSLETTER BEING DISTRIBUTED TO COUNTY AND INSTITUTIONAL LIBRARIES BY STATE LIBRARY

The South Carolina State Library has purchased subscriptions to TIPS FROM CLIP to send to public and institutional libraries. TIPS . . . , a newsletter published by the Cooperative Library Information Program, Madison, Wisconsin, is published several times during the year, offering practical and clever programs, suggestions, and aids in solving library problems, particularly in relating library services to people.

The September-October, 1973, issue is the first to be mailed to public and institutional libraries. Special note may be taken that the Greenville County Library's services to local clubs and organizations are mentioned on page five of the October issue.

Due to mailing costs, future issues of TIPS . . . will be distributed by members of the State Library's Field Services staff. It is suggested that libraries receiving the newsletter establish a permanent file of this publication.

Correction: In the October, 1973, issue, it was erroneously reported that J. Mitchell Reames was serving as consultant for the new Lander College Library. While Mr. Reames has contributed advice on the project, Dr. H. Joanne Harrar has been employed as library building consultant for Lander College.

REVENUE-SHARING RESTRICTIONS ON CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS

It is important for all libraries to realize that certain restrictions are in force concerning the use of federal revenue-sharing monies by local municipalities when the funds are used for capital projects, i. e. construction. If more than 25% of the funds used for the project are revenue-sharing funds, the contractor must pay federal minimum wages for all trades as established by the U. S. Department of Labor.

LIBRARIES BREAK GROUND

On September 25, groundbreaking ceremonies for a new library - classroom complex at the University of South Carolina Lancaster Regional Campus were held. The new building, which will contain the library, a learning resources center, classrooms, offices, and art studio, is estimated to cost $600,000. The new building is being funded by a $300,000 grant from the Elliott White Springs Foundation and a matching grant of $300,000 from county appropriations.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the Pamplico Public Library, a branch of the Florence County Library, were held on September 29. The new structure, which will replace a one-room storefront facility, will be a one-story building. It is estimated that the construction project will cost between $25-$30,000. The new library is being financed with $15,000 in revenue-sharing funds from Florence County and more than $15,000 in donations which were obtained through various fund-raising events held over the past two years.

LIBRARY ORIENTATION PROGRAM AT USC RECOGNIZED

The Committee on Bibliographic Instruction of the Association of College and Research Libraries has cited the library orientation program of the University of South Carolina. The Committee recognized USC's freshman library instruction program as one of the five noteworthy instruction programs in the country in its evaluation of 85 library instruction programs carried out by U. S. academic libraries.

LIBRARY ORIENTATION COURSE AT COLLEGE OF CHARLESTON

Six hundred students at the College of Charleston are currently enrolled in Library 101, a library orientation course required of all entering freshmen and transfer students. During the fall semester, the College is conducting 15 sections of the course, which offers a one-hour credit. In the near future, it is planned that portions of the course will be presented as supplementary material to classroom lectures and will be offered on audio-visual equipment and software with auxiliary equipment being housed at the College's Learning Resources Center. It is hoped that exercises may eventually be scored by computer.

The College of Charleston's Library 101 represents the only library orientation program of this type being used by an academic institution in South Carolina. For more information concerning the College's library program, including student handbooks of the library and outlines of the course, contact Ms. Joan Schmelzle, Reference Librarian, College of Charleston.

TRI-COUNTY STUDENTS AID LIBRARY DEVELOPMENT

Students enrolled in the Industrial Division of Tri-County TEC have contributed to library development in two communities in South Carolina. TEC students involved in a live-work policy which permits them to participate in building projects for non-profit organizations have worked on both the Clemson Community Library and the Pickens Village Library.

Work began on the Pickens Village Library, a branch of the Pickens County Library, in 1972 with students involved in several of the building phases. When completed, it is estimated that the work performed on the library building by TEC students and instructors will have reduced normal costs of the construction project by one-half.

Tri-County TEC students also were involved in the renovation of a building to house the Clemson Branch of the Pickens County Library. With materials purchased by the Friends of the Clemson Library, students renovated and expanded an abandoned wood-working shop, converting it into a library building for the Clemson community.

CHEROKEE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION FORMED

Sixteen local librarians in Cherokee County have organized the Cherokee County Library Association. The organizational meeting, held on October 10, was attended by representatives of the county library, school libraries, and Limestone College Library. The association will attempt to promote closer cooperation among libraries and encourage professional growth by sponsoring speakers and discussion groups. It is planned that the association will meet on a quarterly basis.

Elected to offices at the first meeting were: David Lyon, Director of the Cherokee County Public Library, President; Mrs. Esther Glymph, Supervisor of Elementary School Libraries, Vice-President; Mrs. Swofford, Secretary; Mrs. Lula Harling, former school librarian, Treasurer; and Mrs. Harriet Oglesbee, Limestone College Librarian, Program Chairman.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES EXHIBIT ART WORKS

Paintings of local artists are being displayed by the Lee County Library. Each month, the library features a different local artist.

A collection of photographic prints by students at the Salkehatchie Regional campus of the University of South Carolina was exhibited at the Barnwell County Library in September.

An exhibition of original lithographs by Currier and Ives were displayed at the Anderson County Library during October. The exhibition was jointly sponsored by the Anderson County Arts Council and the Bill Murphy Insurance Agency.

Paintings by local artists and artists' groups were displayed at branch libraries of the Richland County Public Library in October.

LIBRARY PUBLICATIONS

An attractive, informational brochure has recently been printed and distributed by the Union County Library. In presenting basic information on library operations, Mr. Edward Burwell, Union County Librarian, chose a question-and-answer format for the text of his brochure. The brochure features a photograph of the main library building on the front cover and a picture of the library's new bookmobile on the back.

GRANTS

A total of $40,000 in grants from the U. S. Office of Education College Library Resources Program was awarded to eight libraries at the University of South Carolina. Individual grants of $5,000 were allotted to each regional campus library and the Law Library at the main campus for purchase of materials on current social problems.

SURVEY ON LIBRARY SECURITY

In a nationwide survey on library security, public libraries rated book theft, vandalism, and non-return of borrowed books as their top three security problems while it was estimated that public libraries face more serious losses through fire. The Burns Security Institute, a private research unit for the study of crime and safety in institutional and business areas, has published a 40-page report resulting from a questionnaire which was sent to 255 libraries in 39 states. The report both analyzes libraries' responses and provides recommendations.

Public librarians who wish to read this report may request it on interlibrary loan from the South Carolina State Library.

NATIONAL LIBRARY CONFERENCE IS URGED

In a speech on October 11, U. S. Congressman John Brademus (D. -Ind.), Chairman of the House Select Education Subcommittee, urged Congress to call a National Library Conference in 1976. Mr. Brademus called for Congress and the President to empower the existing National Commission on Libraries and Information Sciences to prepare for a White House Conference on Libraries for sometime in 1976. House Republican Leader Gerald Ford, (Mich.) and Senator Claiborne Pell (D. -R.I.) introduced similar resolutions. Mr. Brademus stated that "the exponential information explosion, the demands of an ever better educated American public, and spiraling costs, have brought the nation's libraries to 'the point of crisis'." Mr. Brademus criticized cuts by the Nixon Administration in federally-supported library programs, indicating that there is a need for re-evaluation of the nation's commitment to its libraries.

The North Branch of the Orangeburg County Library opened on November 8.

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON LIBRARIES AND INFORMATION SCIENCE TO FOCUS ON DEVELOPMENT OF NATIONAL PROGRAM

Development of a major national program for library and information services will be the coming year's focal point for the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science according to Dr. Frederick Burkhardt, Chairman. The program will focus on the development and interconnection of U. S. library and information resources, on the role of national resource collections and services, and on the implications of developing technology and administrative structures.

The program requires recognition that the library and information needs of the country are of more than local concern and that the federal government, in partnership with local and state agencies, must support certain appropriate and necessary parts of the program. It is suggested in the program that the federal government assume responsibility for the interstate components of a national program and for matching incentive funding to the states to help them create the intra-state components.

As stated by Dr. Burkhardt, "New directions for libraries and information services are required at the federal level, and this program, when completed in the next eighteen months, should provide a new impetus for improved library and information service in the United States." The proposal comes out of meetings of the Commission with professional society representatives, private and public funding agencies, government agencies, and from public regional hearings held by the Commission in Chicago, San Francisco, Atlanta, and Boston. One of the major concerns expressed in these hearings was that the Commission take the initiative in planning a national program.

RETIRED SENIOR VOLUNTEER PROGRAM

The RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program) is a joint effort by the federal government and local communities to serve persons sixty years and above by providing them with service opportunities in their local communities. Retired persons are encouraged and helped to remain involved and active in and for the community; as a result, the local community benefits from their service. The volunteer serves in many different areas, including public and institutional libraries. Retired persons have many talents and much to contribute to community service.

Under the RSVP program, federal grants are awarded to local communities to establish a program, with the local communities providing both the program as well as local contributions which may be in-kind as matching funds for the federal grant.

Libraries wishing to investigate participation in the RSVP program may contact the State RSVP Resource Specialist at the South Carolina Commission on Aging, 2414 Bull Street, Suite 101, Columbia, South Carolina 29201, for further information. Local RSVP offices have already been established in eight locations in South Carolina: Greenville, Spartanburg, Charleston, Newberry, Rock Hill, Florence, Columbia and McCormick.

BICENTENNIAL COMMUNITY PROGRAM

The Bicentennial Community Program is the National American Revolution Bicentennial Commission's effort to involve every American community in the observance of the Nation's 200th anniversary in 1976. The program will increase citizen's involvement in the Bicentennial, while stimulating community participation, increasing the community's rate of progress, and determining community priorities. The Bicentennial Community designation also allows communities to use the National ARBC Logo in conjunction with local commemorations of the Bicentennial.

To achieve recognition as a Bicentennial Community, the following four step procedures must be completed:

1. Organize a Bicentennial planning and coordinating committee which is representative of all segments of the community.
2. Plan a Bicentennial program which will leave at least one lasting reminder of the effort made in honor of the Bicentennial commemoration.
3. Obtain the approval of the Chief Executive or governing body of the community.
4. Submit the application to the appropriate Regional Planning Office. After approving the plans, the Regional Planning Office will send the application to the State Bicentennial Commission for review. The South Carolina American Revolution Bicentennial Commission will then forward the plans to the National ARBC through its Atlanta office.

Applications must be approved by the appropriate Regional Planning Office before being sent to the State Bicentennial Commission.

The above information concerning the Bicentennial Community Program was supplied by Mr. Barney Slawson, Deputy Coordinator of the program, South Carolina American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, P.O. Box 3158, Columbia, South Carolina 29202 (803-758-2535).

CHARLES EDWARD STOW

In the death of Charles Edward Stow on October 10, 1973, the South Carolina Library Association lost a valuable member. Born in Greenville, South Carolina, on January 6, 1914, he was the son of Mrs. Jennie Charles Stow and the late Walter Stow. He received his B.A. degree from Furman University in 1936 and his B.S. in L. S. from Columbia University in 1937. From 1937 to 1950, he was Librarian of the Hill School in Pottstown, Pennsylvania, and was Reference Librarian at Furman University in 1950-51 and the Greenville Public Library in 1951-52. From 1952 until his death, he was Librarian of the Greenville County Library. In this last position, Charles Stow, with the able assistance of colleagues and trustees, provided the leadership which developed the Greenville County Library into one of the finest in the state.

B.O. Thomason, Jr., Chairman of the Greenville County Board of Trustees, described him as "a highly intelligent and capable individual. For some 21 years Charles E. Stow graced our library as Librarian. His primary goal was for our county to have the finest library possible." He was active in his church and his wider interest in his profession is attested by the fact that he was a member of the American and South-eastern as well as the South Carolina Library Association. He was President of S. C. L. A. in 1957.

One did not have to know him long to realize that under Charles Stow's quiet and dignified manner lay a wry sense of humor that made him an unusually pleasant companion. He will be sorely missed by his friends and colleagues.

The preceding motion was adopted by the South Carolina Library Association at its biennial conference on October 13.
